About IBRO

The International Boxing Research Organization (IBRO) was organized in June, 1982 for the express purposes of: establishing an accurate history of boxing; compiling complete and accurate boxing records; facilitating the dissemination of boxing research information and cooperating in safeguarding the individual research efforts of its members by application of the rules of scholarly research.

Membership in IBRO is open to anyone having an interest in boxing research, statistics or history.

Members exchange their boxing research findings and requests for assistance primarily through a bimonthly newsletter.

This first annual journal is a potpourri of boxing anecdotes, articles, statistical compilations and records and is distributed free of charge to IBRO members.

JACK DEMPSEY'S EARLY BOUTS

(ed. note - The early ring record of the late Jack Dempsey has always been quite sketchy. Dates and locations of many of his 1914 and 1915 bouts are still lacking. In an excellent piece of boxing research, Laurence Fielding has managed to obtain newspaper accounts of some of Dempsey's early bouts from such obscure papers as the Tonopah Daily Bonanza and the Cripple Creek Times and Victor Daily Record).

I feel that these clippings have a bit of value with regard to Dempsey's record because some of the information would change the dates or even the results of two or three of Dempsey's fights as listed in the 1982 Ring Record Book.

The clipping headlined "Two Big Battles" contains a report of a fight that Dempsey had in June, 1915 at Tonopah, Nevada with Johnny Sudenberg. The record book shows this fight as a win for Dempsey, and it appears that most of the crowd felt that Dempsey won most of the rounds and deserved to win. But we are supposed to go by official decisions, and the article says that the referee, Minnick, held up the arms of both fighters, declaring it a draw. So it appears that it was not a no decision contest, there really was an official decision. I feel that it should be changed to a draw in Dempsey's record.

The clipping headlined "Dempsey Looms Large in Scrap", dated June 1, 1915, reports Dempsey's fight with Sudenberg which took place on May 31, 1915 at Goldfield, Nevada, also a 10 round draw. The record book has the right place and result on this fight, but gives the date as July 3, which is a mistake. Somebody probably got the date mixed up with another fight card which did take place at Goldfield on July 3 but did not involve Dempsey but was between Roy Moore and Ed McAuliffe.

The clipping headlined "Refuse to Fight" mentions that Dempsey and Sudenberg were to have their third fight in July at Goldfield, and that after three postponements they were ready to go on July 28. But they refused to fight when they learned that there was so little money. So the promoter gave up and the third fight did not take place either at Goldfield or Tonopah.

The clipping from the Durango Evening Herald reports a fight Dempsey had in Durango, Colorado with Andy Malloy on October 7, 1915, that is, if it could be called a fight. They were hampered by one of those old-fashioned sheriffs who was strongly anti-prize-fighting. The portion of the article which pertains to Dempsey reads as follows: "It was the Dempsey-Malloy contest that the audience wanted and the utmost interest was exhibited. Before the bout Sheriff Fassbinder announced that it must be confined to a strictly boxing contest - if there was a knockout he would arrest the participants. The sheriff said it had to be confined absolutely in accordance with the advertisement. The bout went the full ten rounds without a decision, although the audience declared Dempsey the better man. Dempsey towered over his opponent and had a longer reach. Malloy, however, was game and put up a clever defense and got in some good welts". This fight appears in Dempsey's 1914 record as a "NC - no contest". My understanding is that "no contest" is a decision that has to be rendered by a referee or a boxing commission in a case of unsatisfactory performance or fakery. But, according to this article, no such decision was rendered - in fact, there was no decision at all. So it really was just another 10 round no decision fight, which was so typical of the 1910-1920 era.

The clipping headlined "Smith and Bauers" includes a line stating that Dempsey knocked out George Coplen, and mentions him as Jack Dempsey of Victor (which is near Cripple Creek). The above clippings mention him as of Pueblo. Pueblo was also the town of Jim Flynn.

The clipping headlined "Fast Boxing Events Featured Elks Smoker" reports a fight card which took place in Victor, Colorado on May 29, 1915. One of the bouts on the card was a Jack Dempsey knocking out Kid Young in 3 rounds, but there is doubt in my mind as to whether this was really Dempsey. The clipping headlined "Dempsey Here to Meet Sudenberg" (in Goldfield, Nevada) is dated May 24 and the fight was on May 31. Goldfield is more than 600 miles from Victor. It is hard to imagine a fighter making a trip like that just before an important fight. Also there is no Kid Young listed in Dempsey's record. Maybe it was one of Jack's brothers.

Based on the information in these newspaper clippings, these changes should be made in Dempsey's record:

May 31, 1915 - Johnny Sudenberg, Goldfield .....D 10 (not July 3, 1914)

June 13, 1915 - Johnny Sudenberg, Tonopah ..... D 10 (not W 10)

Oct. 7, 1915 - Andy Malloy, Durango ..... ND 10 (not NC and not 1914)

Nov. 19, 1915 - George Coplen, Cripple Creek .....KO 6 (not KO 7)

DEMPSEY HERE TO MEET SUDENBERG

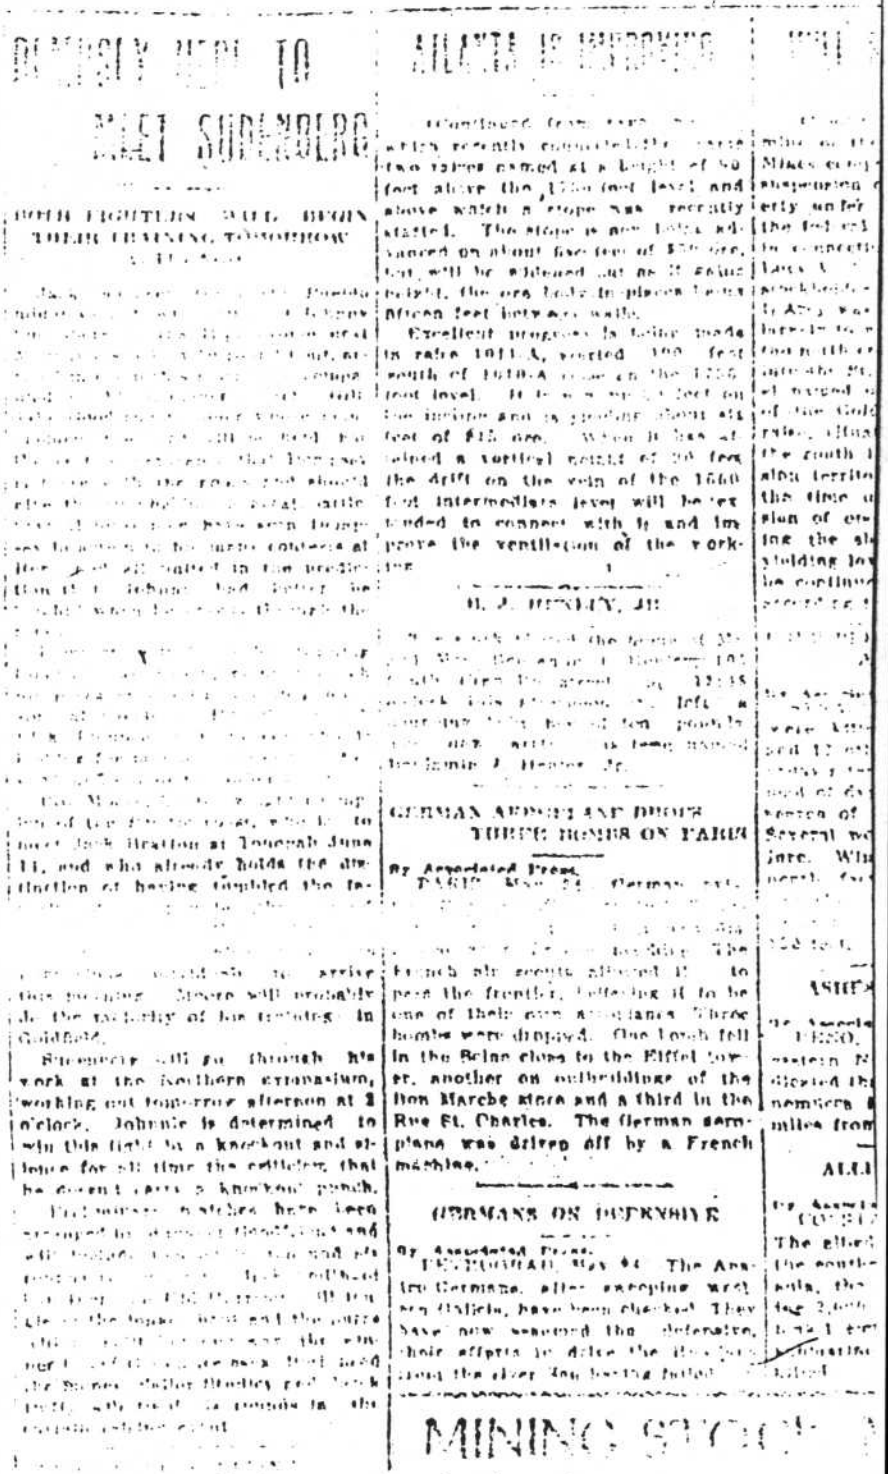

Both Fighters Will Begin Their Training Tomorrow Afternoon

Jack Dempsey , the husky Pueblo middleweight who will meet Johnny Sudenberg at the Hippodrome next Monday night in a 10 round bout, arrived in camp this morning accompanied by his manager, Jack Gill. Jake Goodfriend, under whose management the card will be held, has the best of assurance that Dempsey is there with the goods and should give the Omaha boy a great battle. Several local men have seen Dempsey in action in his many contests at Reno and all united in the prediction that Johnny had better be "right" when he crawls through the ropes.

Dempsey will begin his training tomorrow afternoon, going through his paces at the Unity club gymnasium at 3 o'clock. He will box with Dick Trounce, a Reno lad who is looking for matches in southern Nevada, and one or two other boxers.

Roy Moore, bantamweight champion of the Pacific coast, who is to meet Jack Bratton at Tonopah June 11, and who already holds the distinction of having tumbled the favorite of Tonopah in the second round of a bout.....was also among the pugnacious individuals to arrive this morning. Moore will probably do the majority of his training in Goldfield.

Sudenberg will go through his work at the Northern gymnasium, working out tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Johnnie is determined to win this fight by a knockout and silence for all time the criticism that he doesn't carry a knockout punch.

Preliminary matches have been arranged by Manager Goodfriend and will include two bouts, ten and six rounds respectively, Jack Smith of San Diego and Kid Harrison will tangle in the longer bout and the purse will be split just one way, the winner to get the entire sack. Both need the money. Sailor Studley and Speck Duffy will fight six rounds in the curtain raising event.

FAST BOXING EVENTS FEATURED ELKS SMOKER

Members of the antlered herd lived up to their reputation of being royal entertainers last night at the Elks smoker held at the Elks home in Victor. The entertainment which consisted of boxing, vocal and instrumental music, was regarded as one of the best staged in the district for months.

From the time Nelson Franklin, the official announcer, mounted the platform to call out the first number of the program until the hour arrived when the janitor's appearance signalled it was "Elks bed time" the spectators thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

There were three boxing events and other athletic fetes in which young men of the district displayed their prowess. McNeely's orchestra dispensed music and a number of renditions were given by a quartet of Cripple Creek and Victor Elks. All who participated in the entertainment were roundly applauded.

In the first boxing event, Victor Crumby, of Victor, was awarded a decision over Kid McCrumb, of the Irwin Athletic club. This pair were evenly matched and according to the opinion of many, the result should have been a draw. They fought four rounds.

The "barrel" fight in which four boys wearing barrels about their legs indulged in a fistic bombardment was won by Kid Schrontz, of Victor.

Jack Dempsey won by a knockout over Kid Young Dempsey's right under full head of steam collided with Young's jaw in the third round and the fight ended.

The main event was a scheduled six-round bout between George Bauers, of Goldfield, and Young Morgan, of Victor. Bauers was given the decision in the second round on a foul when Morgan struck him when he was down. Bauers appeared uninjured and agreed to proceed with the fight. In the third round, Bauers called for an armistice when Morgan struck low. Bauers was again declared the victor on a foul.

The boxing events were refereed by Drummond Grant. John Muehlhausen, member of the committee that arranged the affair, was master of ceremonies.

Sudenberg Unable to Make Headway
Against Him -
Three Draw Fights

For ten rounds last night Jack Dempsey of Pueblo, who looked more like an overgrown school boy than a fighter, and who incidentally proved otherwise, met the lunges of his shorter opponent, Johnny Sudenberg, with a straight left which invariably connected with the latter's visage before Johnny could get inside the Colorado boy's guard for a slam of his own variety.

For the first five rounds, Dempsey displayed his straight left, which he alternated occasionally with a jab from his starboard appendage in a desire to refrain from any infighting. He was overlooking his best job, however, when he refused to let the Omaha battler stay in close. He realized his mistake in the sixth round, after finding he could hold Sudenberg ... in the clinches, and opened up with a succession of jolts chops and jabs with his right to Johnny's jaw, which kept the latter's head bobbing during the rest of the fight. Both boys were fighting strong and furiously at the bell, and under the circumstances the best decision that could have been given was the one Referee Arnold made when he called the bout a draw. Neither boy had been hurt to any extent, and although Dempsey landed the cleanest blows, this was offset by the aggressiveness of Sudenberg, who carried the fight to his rangier opponent all through the battle. In Dempsey, who gives promise of developing into a heavyweight, there is room for a world of improvement and with the experience he will gain during the next few years he should make a formidable opponent for any scrapper.

The fight between Smith and Harrison, from the standpoint of actual fighting of the give and take order, was the best scrap of the evening. Harrison showed up to better advantage against Smith than he has in any of his fights for months. Referee Arnold called the bout a draw, and while the decision was not in accordance with the views of many in the crowd who thought that Smith had a shade the best of the battle on points, it was the most satisfactory verdict that could have been rendered, as neither had any decided lead.

Speck Duffy and Sailor Studley staged their expected tango dance of four rounds. The bout was called a draw. Duffy couldn't hit Studley and the sailor couldn't hurt Duffy, although he swung a few from his shoe tops flush on Speck's jaw.

All of the battles were handled by Referee Arnold, who did not allow any holding, but kept the fighters working all the time. The customary clinches which have been wished on the fans in the past did not materialize last night, for Arnold kept the scrappers separated all the way.

Goldfield was well represented at the ringside, about sixty coming over by special train, while there were eight or ten auto loads from the gold camp.

Preliminary by Rounds

Round 1 - Dempsey's mass attacks and Sudenberg's unpreparedness resulted in three floorings and one slip. Evidently Dempsey' s ambition to end the battle before his antagonist could recover his defense. Superior height and reach, together with Johnny's crouching position, prevented return of blows. Uppercut to jaw set local man groggy - Jack swings twice to face, missing both, then left jab and right to face. Sudenberg takes count on right to jaw. Again takes count on right to body and right, left and right to jaw. Again downed on two to stomach. Sudenberg misses swing and is fought to ropes. Sudenberg lands to face as gong sounds.

Round 2 - Jack puts left to face and misses right swing. Sudenberg accepts left jab and swings wildly in return. Nearly goes through ropes. Takes right to face and hangs on to avoid further punishment. Dempsey drives to face, repeats. Sudenberg returns left and right to stomach, interchange to head. Sudenberg

Round 3—Dempsey twice misses swings. Sudenberg gets under them and closes in. Sudenberg is fought to his corner. Two rights to Dempsey's jaw and one to Sudenberg's. Johnny's defense improves. Dempsey to body and Johnny rests on his shoulder. Dempsey uppercuts on ropes.

Round 4—Sudenberg lands to body. Dempsey twice to face. Fight with one arm free. Short jabs freely exchanged, but punches light. Dempsey puts two to belly. They exchange to face. Dempsey very tired. Each neglects openings. Dempsey money still in evidence. Both complain of low blows.

Round 5—Dempsey lands on ribs, misses swing and then gets in right and left to jaw that sends Johnny's head bouncing but he takes punishment well and ducks cleverly. Sudenberg puts three light ones to jaw and tries for a sleeping powder, missing by a hair's breadth, then takes one on jaw, one to body and right and left to head.

Round 6—Three to Johnny's head. Sudenberg misses uppercut. To Sudenberg's head and body. Johnny solely on defensive. He regains his strength by holding on and taking short punches in the kidneys. Sudenberg after breakaway gets in two telling blows to neck and body, receiving one on jaw.

Round 3 - Dempsey twice misses swings. Sudenberg gets under them and closes in. Sudenberg is fought to his corner. Two rights to Dempsey's jaw and one to Sudenberg's. Johnny's defense improves. Dempsey to body and Johnny rests on his shoulder. Dempsey uppercuts on ropes.

TWO BIG BATTLES

Round 7 - Johnny lands heavy over heart, jabs exchanged. Sudenberg accepts on jaw, face and body. Sudenberg again wrestles. Swings exchanged, both missing.

Round 8 - Two rights are landed on Sudenberg's jaw, both are returned with interest. Sudenberg lands heavily on Dempsey's digestive apparatus. Dempsey works right like a sledge-hammer and Johnny gets quite groggy. Heavy smash to Sudenberg's jaw.

Round 9 - Dempsey misses twice, then uppercuts twice. Punch lands on Dempsey's belly. Dempsey overreaches and lands on Sudenberg's face with his arm. Right to Sudenberg's heart, interchange to jaw. Sudenberg attacks wildly and runs into left. Both uppercut and cling. Pandemonium at end of round. Sudenberg senses that he has been saving himself for the finish.

Round 10 - To Sudenberg's face Dempsey puts right and left to head. Sudenberg lands full arm to Dempsey's face and uppercuts to jaw. Sudenberg to jaw and gets one on face. They infight and jab but without steam, each lacking strength to break away and land knockout.

Referee Minnick holds up right arms of both. Decision greeted with cheers and protests, some observers claiming that of the ten rounds eight were Dempsey's and one was drawn, but the referee based his decision on Sudenberg's recovery of strength and his taking the offensive so strongly in the tenth.

The Main Event

Herbert White of Stockton challenged at 133 to 135 pounds. Jack Smith of San Diego accepted. The crowd loudly acclaimed Roy Moore and Jack Bratton as they entered the ring. They fought without bandages. Moore worked so fast from the start that his blows could scarcely be seen, much less recorded. He fairly danced about the ring, his lithe body squirming with muscles. Bratton, on the other hand, was stolid and showed much better headwork and close defense than is his custom.

Round 1 - To Bratton's head, Bratton to stomach, to Jack's head and face again. Tattoo played by each on ribs. A very clear draw. Moore fought purposely with back to ropes.

Round 2 - Bratton to ribs, taking return to stomach. Moore instantly covered up after each lead. Crowd called to Jack to use both gloves, as his work thus far was all with the right, the left being in face defense. They waltzed giddily, requiring frequent breaking. Hard one to Moore's stomach, equally hard to Bratton's jaw. To Moore's ribs, to Bratton's stomach.

Round 3 - Jack misses swing, then lands five to kidneys. Bratton miscalculates and hits to shoulder. Moore retaliates with two to stomach, then they interchange at arm length. Moore ducks swing and slips. This is clearly Bratton's round.

Round 4 - Tonopah boy swings wildly Moore right to chest and repeats. Furious interchange. Bratton goes to the canvas and writhes. He has received blow on pelvic bone, denting cup and causing the groin to puff up and the hip to redden. Officers leap into the ring and force back the crowd. Dr. Masterson makes examination. Bratton says he wants to win the fight but not on the foul. He quickly recovers and the battle continues with the time taken out. The crowd is divided in opinion as to the foul and creates such tumult that the gong cannot be heard, a thousand peoplecheering and groaning at the top of their lungs. Moore three to body, to face and kidney, taking one to face. Two to Bratton's stomach, one seemingly too low.

TWO BIG BATTLES

Round 5 - Moore three to kidneys and to Bratton's face. Moore gets another on bogle and the claret flows freely. Evens up by putting Bratton's left eye shut. Another ragtime waltz, with referee chasing them about the ring to force a break. A heavy one to Moore's jaw, response to face. They interchange rights to body, Bratton to kidneys. This round even.

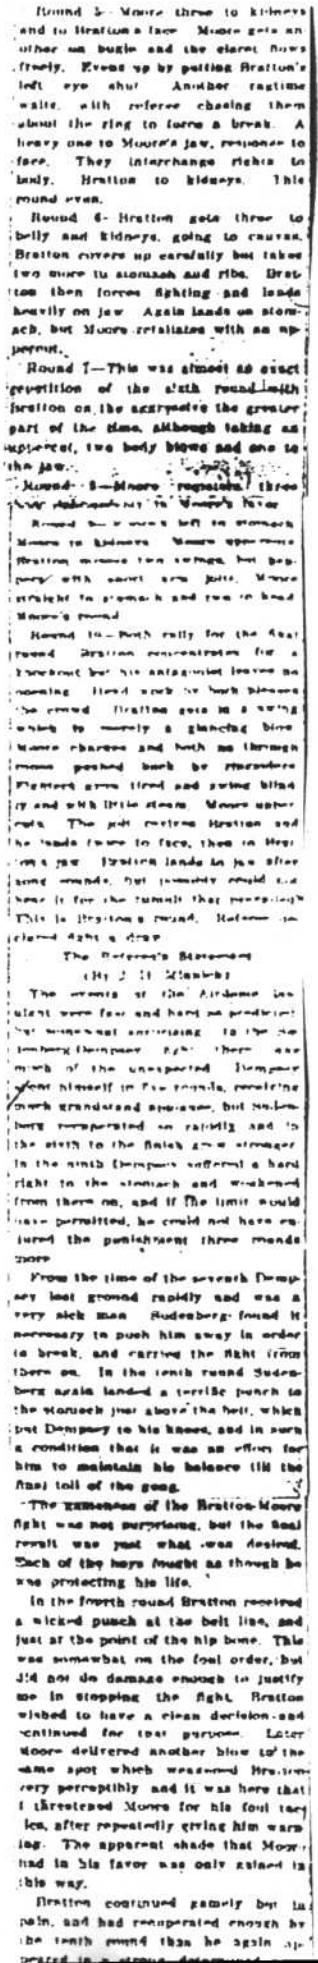

Round 6 - Bratton gets three to belly and kidneys, going to canvas. Bratton covers up carefully but takes two more to stomach and ribs. Bratton then forces fighting and lands heavily on jaw. Again lands on stomach, but Moore retaliates with an uppercut.

Round 7 - This was almost an exact repetition of the sixth round with Bratton on the aggressive the greater part of the time, although taking an uppercut, two body blows and one to the jaw.

Round 8 - Moore registers three sharp jabs. ... was considerably in Moore's favor.

Round 9 - Moore's left to stomach Moore to kidneys. Moore uppercuts. Bratton misses two swings, but peppers with short arm jolts. Moore straight to stomach and two to head. Moore's round.

Round 10 - Both rally for the final round. Bratton concentrates for a knockout but his antagonist leaves no opening. Head work by both pleases the crowd. Bratton gets in a swing which is merely a glancing blow. Moore charges and both go through ropes, pushed back by ringsiders. Fighters grow tired and swing blindly and with little steam. Moore uppercuts. The jolt revives Bratton and he lands twice to face, then to Bratton's jaw. Bratton lands to jaw after gong sounds, but possibly could not hear it for the tumult that prevailed. This is Bratton's round. Referee declared fight a draw.

The Referee's Statement
(By J.H. Minnick)

The events at the Airdome last night were fast and hard as predicted, but somewhat surprising in the Sudenberg-Dempsey fight there was much of the unexpected. Dempsey spent himself in five rounds, receiving much grandstand applause, but Sudenberg recuperated so rapidly and in the sixth to the finish grew stronger. In the ninth Dempsey suffered a hard right to the stomach and weakened from there on, and if the limit would have permitted, he could not have endured the punishment three rounds more.

From the time of the seventh Dempsey lost ground rapidly and was a very sick man. Sudenberg found it necessary to push him away in order to break, and carried the fight from there on. In the tenth round Sudenberg again landed a terrific punch to the stomach just above the belt, which put Dempsey to his knees, and in such a condition that it was an effort for him to maintain his balance till the final toll of the gong.

The gameness of the Bratton-Moore fight was not surprising, but the final result was just what was desired. Each of the boys fought as though he was protecting his life.

In the fourth round Bratton received a wicked punch at the belt line, and just at the point of the hip bone. This was somewhat on the foul order, but did not do damage enough to justify me in stopping the fight. Bratton wished to have a clean decision and continued for that purpose. Later Moore delivered another blow to the same spot which weakened Bratton very perceptibly, and it was here that I threatened Moore for his foul tactics, after repeatedly giving him warning. The apparent shade that Moore had in his favor was only gained in this way.

Bratton continued gamely but in pain, and had recuperated enough by the tenth round that he again appeared in a strong, determined manner and had Moore at his mercy when the gong sounded the end of the battle.

Mrs. Becker was said at that very moment to be visiting her doomed husband in Sing Sing. Justice Ford's decision covered five full pages of legal paper and contained about 1,500 words. It goes into details of the affidavits filed by the attorneys for Becker and declares the evidence proffered was "for the most part cumulative and hence inadmissible."

OSSINING, July 29. — Charles Becker in the death house at Sing Sing prison last night received calmly the news that his appeal for a new trial had been denied. Becker said he was not afraid to die.

Father Cassin, the condemned man's spiritual adviser, said later that Becker bore up well. Becker had been waiting for some news and when Deputy Warden Johnson reached his cell he inquired:

"Have I lost?"

Johnson replied: "Yes, Charlie; I am very sorry to say you have.

Becker's voice was thick as he said: "I have been hoping against hope that I would win and I am disappointed, but I am not afraid to die."

ALBANY, July 29. — Governor Whitman said Justice Ford did the only thing he could, and if he had any doubt of the guilt of Becker he would pardon him.

OSSINING, N. Y., July 29 — Preparations are being completed for the execution of Becker at daylight tomorrow. His wife and others are expected to spend the night here. Becker is bearing up well.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The solution of saving Becker lies in Governor Whitman. Counsel for Becker announced that they had abandoned the idea of appealing to Judge Hogan of the court of appeals at Syracuse for a stay of execution.

LATERAL WORK TO BEGIN SOON

GREAT BEND MAIN SHAFT, IS CLEANED OUT TO THE BOTTOM

Lateral operations will soon begin at the property of the Goldfield Great Bend mining company. The main working shaft has been freed of water and repaired to the 400-foot level and the mine below has been cleaned out. Soon the main crosscut to the veins will be started for exploration.

The time occupied in unwatering the shaft was exactly 52 days, which is regarded as a record performance. When it is considered that the Great Bend mine drains the entire Daisy watershed and that last winter was one of the most remarkable for snowfall the work is little short of phenomenal. Before operations were begun it was estimated that something like 4,000,000 gallons of water stood in the workings to be removed, but after the experience of the past two months it is figured that not less than 10,000,000 gallons were raised by working both pump and bailer. The work of dewatering the mine was not all straight pumping but included close watching of the shaft for defective points, timbering and the removal of many obstructions which had found lodgment during the eight years the Great Bend was idle.

RENO RACE RESULTS

Another large crowd was the feature of yesterday's well balanced card at the Reno race meet. The races resulted as follows: First race, Old Bob first, Bunny second, Billy McQuaid third; second race, W. C. West first, Chas. Fourth race, Spur first, Brighouse second, Escoburia third; fifth race, Sealed Oats first, Sonora second, Orange Blossom third; sixth race, Prince Conrad first, Henry Walbank second, Handy third; seventh race, Quick first, Flanigan second, Christmas Eve third.

Over 200 fight fans took in the boxing contest at the Gem last night and while there was no knockout there was some very ... boxing and the participants ... they had been in a mix-up. A preliminary bout between Rudy Kikal and Sam Barnett went seven rounds and pleased the audience. There was no decision but it was plain to see the colored boy was superior in battling and sparring and punching. It was the Dempsey-Malloy contest that the audience wanted and the utmost interest was exhibited. Before the bout Sheriff Fassbinder announced that it must be confined to a strictly boxing contest- if there was a knockout he would arrest the participants. The sheriff said it had to be confined absolutely in accordance with the advertisement. The bout went the full ten rounds without a decision, although the audience declared Dempsey the better man. Dempsey towered over his opponent and had a longer reach. Malloy, however, was game and put up a clever defense and got in some good welts. It is thought by some that Barnett and Maloy would make a ... match as the colored fellow is developing into a hard hitter.

SMITH AND BAUERS GO 20 ROUNDS TO DRAW

Matty faints at the end of last round and gong probably saved him from a knockout - George Coplen is knocked out by Dempsey in the sixth.

"Matty" Smith, the hair-trigger whirlwind of Denver and George Bauers, the sturdy little man of Goldfield, fought 20 fast rounds to a draw at the Lyric opera house last night. Both men were on their feet when the gong rang, but when the timekeeper struck the triangle, Smith fainted and fell sprawling on the floor.

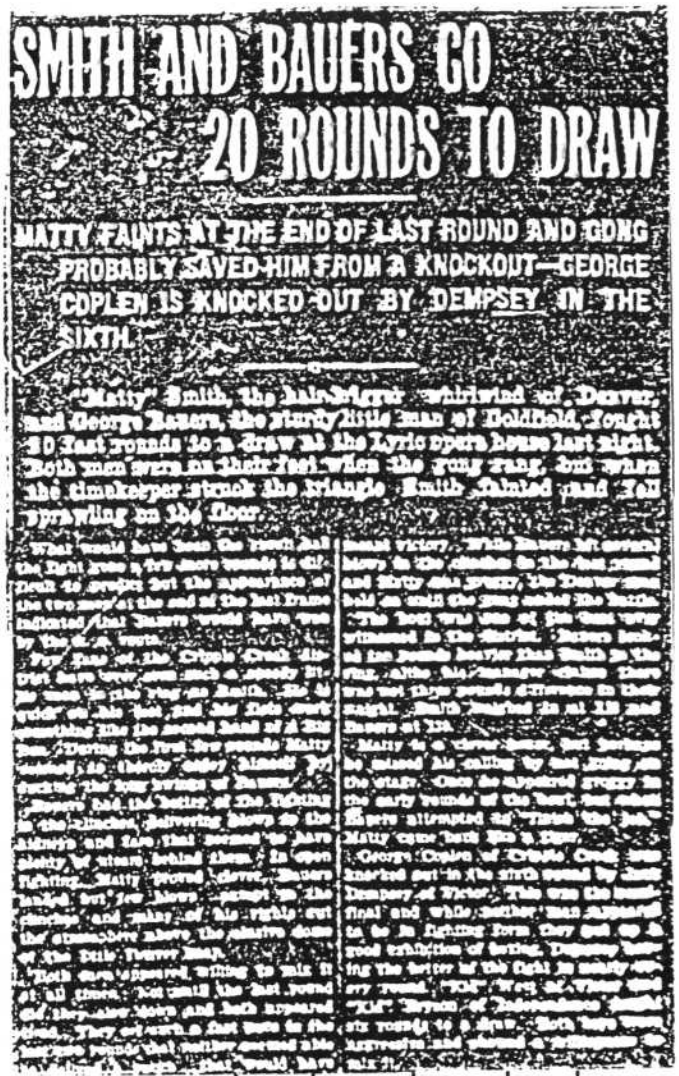

What would have been the result had the fight gone a few more rounds is difficult to predict but the appearance of the two men at the end of the last frame indicated that Bauers would have won by the k.o. route.

Few fans of the Cripple Creek district have ever seen such a speedy little man in the ring as Smith. He is quick on his feet and his fists work something like the second hand of a Big Ben. During the first few rounds Matty seemed to thoroly enjoy himself by ducking the long swings of Bauers.

Bauers had the better of the fighting in the clinches, delivering blows to the kidneys and fare that seemed to have plenty of steam behind them. In open fighting, Matty proved clever. Bauers landed but few blows except in the clinches and many of his rights cut the atmosphere above the elusive dome of the little Denver man.

Both men appeared willing to mix it at all times. Not until the last round did they slow down and both appeared tired. They set such a fast pace in the last two rounds that neither seemed able to deliver a punch that would have meant victory. While Bauers hit several blows in the clinches in the last round and Matty was groggy, the Denver man held on until the gong ended the battle.

The bout was one of the best ever witnessed in the district. Bauers looked ten pounds heavier than Smith in the ring, altho his manager claims there was not three pounds difference in their weight. Smith weighed in at 133 and Bauers at 130.

SMITH AND BAUERS GO 20 ROUNDS TO DRAW

MATTY FAINTS AT THE END OF LAST ROUND AND GONG PROBABLY SAVED HIM FROM A KNOCKOUT—GEORGE COPLEN IS KNOCKED OUT BY DEMPSEY IN THE SIXTH

Matty is a clever boxer, but perhaps he missed his calling by not going on the stage. Once he appeared groggy in the early rounds of the bout, but when Bauers attempted to "finish the job" Matty came back like a tiger.

George Coplen of Cripple Creek was knocked out in the sixth round by Jack Dempsey of Victor. This was the semi-final and while neither man appeared to be in fighting form they got up a good exhibition of boxing. Dempsey having the better of the fight in nearly every round. "Kid" West of Victor and "Kid" Bryson of Independence fought six rounds to a draw. Both boys were aggressive and showed a willingness to mix it.

NEW WORK STARTED AT YELLOW TIGER

Under the supervision of A. G. H. Currie, who is acting as general manager during the absence of Charles D. Johnson, work has been going steadily ahead at the property of the Yellow Tiger Mining company. Mr. Currie states that the operating results will prove to be a big help to the development work, and he is quite confident that a discovery of importance will be made in the near future.

The main cross cut from the north drift on the 500-foot level has attained a footage on the incline of 56 feet. The rock is at present exposing 2½ feet of ore assaying $6 per ton. The branch cross cut started from the main raise at a point about five feet above the level on the north side of the vein has a length of 15 feet and is exposing 6 feet.

On the 600-foot level the long west crosscut extended several years ago and which is in a badly caved condition is being cleaned out and retimbered in connection with the plan of the management to resume work on the mine below that level, in which drifts opened up an excellent body of ore. The crosscut work has advanced to a point 155 feet from the shaft. On the 500-foot level an east crosscut has been started from the south drift to intercept the vein.

THE DAY THE ST. PAUL IRISHMAN TOOK A SPLASH

Back in the 1920s, boxing was blessed with some of the finest fighters ever to draw on gloves. Not only were the ringmen of the Roaring '20s pleasurable to watch in action, but they were unfailingly colorful characters besides.

One of the better middleweights of that era, and one of its most colorful characters, was the late Jock Malone, from St. Paul, Minnesota. The St. Paul Irishman was a favorite of boxing fans all across the country. Indeed, Malone was a particular favorite in Boston, appearing seventeen times during his career before a Boston audience, starting from 1921.

Between 1916 and 1930, Malone, in those years, helped write some of the brightest chapters in what many fight fans consider the Golden Age of Boxing. In a career that saw him display his wares in a score of cities, he met and defeated such ring luminaries as Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom, Mickey Walker, Tiger Flowers, Jack Britton, Johnny Wilson, and Mike O'Dowd - all world champions. One of the high spots in Malone's career was reached in St. Paul on March 16, 1922, when he knocked out O'Dowd in the first round. Years later, Malone modestly credited that easy victory to the fact that O'Dowd was over the hill at the time.

Jock Malone was not always so modest. In June of 1924 he breezed into Boston for a scheduled 10-rounder against England's Frank Moody. Malone regaled Boston's sports writers with tales of what he was going to do to Moody. After all, Jock pointed out, he had fought a dozen times in Boston rings and never tasted defeat.

"Gentlemen, if I don't beat this Britisher," Malone remonstrated, "why I'll jump in the river." The statement made good copy and was duly reported by the press.

Came June 13, the night of the fight, and at the opening bell Jock set out to give the Englishman his thumping. Much to Malone's chagrin, his opponent seemed unimpressed by Jock's oratory of a few days before and proceeded to give the St. Paul Irishman the fight of his life. At the end of the 10 rounds the decision was awarded to Moody.

Malone left for home the next day, crestfallen at his defeat.

A few weeks later he was wired an offer to return to Boston to face former middleweight champion Johnny Wilson on July 29. Jock eagerly accepted the chance to vindicate himself before the Boston fans. He arrived in Boston and cheerfully predicted victory.

The day of the fight with Wilson, one of the Boston writers recalled Malone's promise of what he would do if he lost the Moody fight, and wondered in print what Jock would do if he lost the fight coming up.

Perhaps Malone was wondering too that night, because Wilson clipped him on the chin in the fourth round and the St. Paul Irishman was out for the count.

Boston fight fans, curious about what Malone would have to say now, had to wait to find out. The day after the fight Malone went into seclusion and would grant no interviews. The papers chided him, and the fans were derisive.

Finally, a day later, the city's boxing writers all received the same phone message: "This is Jock Malone. I'll be at the Charlestown Bridge at noon today." Several of the scribes suspected a gag, but a few decided to play a hunch and showed up.

A few minutes past noon, a purposeful Jock Malone strode to the center of the bridge, climbed the railing and jumped, fully clothed, into the Charles River. In a second or two, he surfaced, swam to shore, clambered up the bank...and strode onto the bridge once again.

Autos halted and pedestrians stopped, agape at the spectacle. Bridge traffic came to a standstill. Malone walked to the center of the bridge, climbed the rail, and into the river he dived a second time. Again he surfaced and swam to shore, where he was met this time by the inquiring press corps.

"Gentlemen," the St. Paul Irishman declared, "you can inform your readers and the boxing fans of this city that Jock Malone is a man of his word. Twice I lost and twice I jumped into the river."

Malone's cockiness was undampened, of course, but luckily for him he backed his predictions with considerably more punch when he fought two bouts later that year. On August 11 he had a return match with Frank Moody, in Detroit this time, and handed the Englishman a nifty lacing. Then on September 17, before a hometown audience in St. Paul, Jock got the second part of his revenge by handing Johnny Wilson a 10-round beating.

On each of these victorious occasions, the St. Paul Irishman remembered to concentrate on his boxing abilities and to forget about any further demonstrations of his diving prowess.

THE HISTORY OF THE JUNIOR FEATHERWEIGHT DIVISION FROM 1922 TO 1942

A LEGEND SPEAKS

By George D. Blair

As the years passed, legends seem to grow to be much larger than they really are. Everyone tends to forget that legends, just like everyone else, are just people. And like all people they have faults and make mistakes, etc. The great John L. Sullivan was no different, as his drinking episodes showed. Here is one more story that makes you wonder.

When Sullivan met Patsy Cardiff in Minneapolis in January of 1887, the fight was termed a fiasco by the St. Paul Pioneer Press newspaper. Sullivan broke the radius bone in his left hand battling Cardiff and many in the audience felt that Cardiff should have won the fight.

Early the morning after the fight Sullivan and his entourage left town by train headed for Fargo, North Dakota. The train pulled into St. Cloud, Minnesota for a short layover about noon. During this time one of John L's group, lightweight boxer Jimmy Carroll, got into an argument with a railroad brakeman by the name of Julius Raymond. Before long, Carroll took a swing at the brakeman and the two got into a full fledged fight. Looking on from the rail car window were Sullivan, Mike McDonald, Steve Taylor, and a fellow called "The Marine."

Things were really going bad for Carroll and the railroader Raymond scored several knockdowns. Finally McDonald came out of the railroad car and attacked Raymond knocking him down and kicking him.

There stood John L. Sullivan on the car platform and would you believe The Great One shouted "Kick 'em. Kick 'em. You have him down now." Not the way you would expect a legend to act.

At this point other railroad men came to the rescue of Raymond. After things were broken up, the yardmen friends of Raymond offered to bet money that Raymond would whip Carroll if he would stand up and fight. No one took the offer, and it was time for the train to leave. Everyone in Sullivan's party got back on the train as it pulled out of the St. Cloud yards. As it left Sullivan stood on the platform certainly not making any friends or enhancing his legend.

A LIST OF RECORD BOOKS FOR PROFESSIONAL BOXERS PUBLISHED SINCE 1900

by Luckett V. Davis

I present here a list of books which are devoted entirely or partially to the compilation of records for professional boxers. The list includes all the record books known to me which have been published during the twentieth century. I believe that this will be useful to members of the International Boxing Research Organization, and other interested persons, as I have noted that members of IBRO are sometimes not aware of all of these sources. I will welcome corrections and additions to the list, which is arranged alphabetically, each entry beginning with the key word in the book title.

JOE BAKSI

A popular figure back in the 1940's was Kulpmont, Pennsylvania's Joe Baksi. A solid 6-1", 210-pounder, he left the coal regions and made it to the big time fighting at Madison Square Garden. He exchanged blows with the best of the heavyweights including Tami Mauriello, Bill Poland, Gus Dorazio, Johnny Shkor and Herb Marshall. In 1945 Baksi lost a decision to Jersey Joe Walcott. Three years later he fought Ezzard Charles and was kayoed in 11 rounds. Walcott and Charles both became heavyweight champions of the world.

Like most fighters Baksi had a tough background and had to start scrapping early. His father died in a cave-in when Joe was just nine. Joe was forced to leave school in the fifth grade and take a job in the mines. There were no other options.

Later in his youth Joe worked as a general handyman for a traveling carnival. He was constantly fascinated by boxing and listened to countless fight broadcasts. It was on June 1, 1939 that Baksi got a seat for the first Lou Nova-Max Baer fight. Baer won by a knockout in round one and also won a rematch over Nova with an eight round kayo.

Watching the first Nova-Baer match the handsome, blond Baksi came to the conclusion that the ring had more to offer than the coal mines. His first job was as a sparring partner for Nova, Jimmy Bivins and the huge Abe Simon. All dropped him because he proved too tough and they didn't want their images tarnished.

In his first four years in the ring, Joe, under the management of Nate Wolfson, fought 50 bouts and lost only two. He never won a championship, but left his mark in ring annals.

Baksi's achievement indicates what a man can do when he applies himself, no matter what his background. Joe was born of Polish parents on Jan. 14, 1922 in Kulpmont, Pennsylvania. He became quite a good football and baseball player and established friendships with a couple of Kulpmont boys who also gained sports fame. They were Steve Filipowicz and Lenny Eshmont. Both men achieved All-American honors at Fordham University, alma mater of the great Vince Lombardi. Eshmont, known as "The Rapid Ram," gained his honors in 1938 and Filipowicz held the spotlight in 1941.

It would be a great thing if aspiring young athletes would follow the example of Joe Baksi. When times were at their toughest he rose above the hardships and achieved fistic prominence.

BOXING'S MAJOR LEAGUERS

Unlike most other major sports, there is no clear distinction between levels of professional boxing. While baseball and hockey have clearly defined major and minor leagues, and golf and bowling separate their professionals between touring and non-touring pros, boxing has no similar classifications.

One possible way to separate professional boxers is by using a set of published ratings. Although the ratings themselves are quite subjective, any boxer classified as a major leaguer should have reached the top ten in his division at some point in his career. With this in mind, a survey was performed of the monthly ratings of "The Ring" for the past 15 years. "The Ring" was chosen since their ratings have been generally impartial, have reflected boxers throughout the world and are relatively easily accessible.

More than 22,000 man-months were tracked in this survey (180 months, 10-12 divisions each month, 11 boxers in each division). The survey included the 180 months from January, 1968 through December, 1982. Ten weight divisions were included every month - the eight traditional ones and the junior lightweight and junior welterweight classes; junior middleweights were added beginning in December, 1974 and junior featherweights from May, 1979. Besides the champion and ten challengers each month, all boxers appearing in the numerical portion of the March annual ratings issue were also included. In some years and divisions this meant as many as 22 boxers included in the annual ratings.

A total of 992 different men were ranked during this period. However, 98 of them appeared only in the annual ratings rated 11th or lower and may be said to not truly be "major league" in caliber. Of the 894 others, half appeared for 14 or fewer months. Roberto Duran was listed the most times - 144 - in four divisions ranging from junior lightweight to junior middleweight. For 10 months he was rated in both welterweight and junior middleweight classes. Muhammad Ali and flyweight Betulio Gonzalez both appeared in the ratings in 136 different months. (Ali, of course, was ranked for several years prior to 1968). Chuck Wepner holds the distinction of being rated in 41 months but never higher than 8th.

The accompanying charts provide some additional information on boxing's major leaguers during the past 15 years.

CALL IT OFF

By George D. Blair

It would seem strange that a world title fight would get boxing outlawed, but it did happen back in 1891 in St. Paul, Minnesota. Early in the year Bob Fitzsimmons, the world middleweight champion, was in Minneapolis to box a four rounder against "The Black Pearl" (Harris Martin). John Barnes and Pat Connelly, St. Paul promoters, wanted to put a title fight on in St. Paul and decided they would talk to Fitzsimmons and his handlers about defending his crown for them.

Ater much conversation Fitzsimmons agreed to terms. Barnes and Connelly secured Australian Jem Hall as the opponent for the title clash. It was to be a fight to the finish with five ounce gloves in a St. Paul baseball park.

When the match was announced it drew immediate nationwide interest. Prior to coming to the United States from his homeland of Australia, Fitzsimmons lost only one fight, that to the same Jem Hall by a fourth round knockout. Hall had come to America for the express purpose of getting a title match with Fitzsimmons, and now it was set to happen. A large crowd was expected and interest was high.

Fitzsimmons and Hall signed the articles of agreement and preparations were set in motion. Ruby Robert sent up his training camp in White Bear Lake, about fifteen miles north of St. Paul. Hall chose a more distant site, Ashland, Wisconsin, for his training site. Both boxers went to work for the June championship clash.

Enter politics. The fight was drawing a lot of publicity and some reform groups decided they didn't want this kind of publicity for their city so they went to Minnesota Governor William R. Merriam. They put a lot of pressure on Merriam, and with re-election coming up the Governor bowed and issued an order to Barnes and Connelly to call off the title fight. When the promoters refused to do so Merriam became enraged. The reform groups applied more pressure threatening to have Merriam impeached if he didn't stop the fight.

Merriam pushed the state legislature for an anti-boxing law, but there was no way he could get it passed in time to stop the Fitzsimmons-Hall fight. Caught in the middle, Merriam again ordered the promoters to cancel the match. Lawyers for Connelly and Barnes stated that if Merriam didn't stop they would go to court to keep him from interferring any further, and that Minnesota didn't have any laws against boxing. The Governor said that the state didn't have any laws that permitted the sport either.

Both fighters were training hard. Fans who traveled to Ashland to see Hall returned to St. Paul with the news that Hall really looked great and this created more interest and publicity, and infuriated the reform groups.

As the day of the fight drew closer Merriam again ordered the promoters to call off the fight and again they flatly refused. Tempers were growing shorter on both sides and things were very touchy. Fitzsimmons and Hall broke up their training camps and headed into town for the final touches of their training.

On the morning of the fight Merriam issued an order to the promoters to call it off, and they said no. Fight fans had arrived from all over the country and the fans started heading for the ball park. At noon the Governor called out the state militia and they surrounded the ball park and allowed no one to enter. At this point Barnes and Connelly had no choice but to call off the fight. Fitzsimmons and Hall packed their bags and left St. Paul.

Under heavy pressure, the state legislature passed an anti-boxing law making the sport illegal in Minnesota. Of course this didn't stop the boxers as shows were held in secret, especially in Hibbing in northern Minnesota. Boxing remained an illegal activity with the penalty for violating the law being five years in prison or a one thousand dollar fine, or both. Boxing remained illegal until the law was repealed in 1915.

It's certainly strange that a world title fight could cause a sport to be banned for 23 years.

THE PAN-AMERICAN GAMES

Although the Pan-American Games have not previously received much recognition in the United States, more extensive coverage by the media of this year's Games in Caracas should increase the public's awareness of this quadrennial event. Competition is held in virtually all Olympic events as well as in several sports such as baseball and tennis that are not yet Olympic sports.

Some of the best world class boxers have competed in the Pan-American Games yet there has been only one professional world champion who was also a Pan-Am champion. Among the world's champions who competed in the Pan-Am Games have been: Raul Macias, Bob Foster, Esteban DeJesus, Miguel DeOliveira, Victor Galindez, Aaron Pryor, Ray Leonard, Leon Spinks and Michael Dokes. Of these men, only Leonard was successful in the Pan-Am Games - winning the 139 pound class in 1975.

While the United States and Cuba have dominated the competition in recent years, in the first Games held in Buenos Aires in 1951 all eight boxing titles were won by Argentineans. Unlike the first Olympic Games to have boxing competition, the 1904 St. Louis Games(where the United States swept all the boxing titles because there were no foreign entrants), the 1951 Pan-American Games had boxers from 11 countries.

Since 1955 ten weight classes have been contested as in the Olympics. The only three time individual winner has been the Cuban light middleweight Rolando Garbey who won in 1967, 1971 and 1975. Teofilo Stevenson can equal that record by winning in 1983. Stevenson was defeated in the semi-final round in 1971 by Duane Bobick but has since won in 1975 and 1979.

Oscar Bonavena holds one of the more unusual Pan-Am records. He lost his first bout in 1963 by disqualification for biting his opponent. A consolation bout between semi-final losers was held to determine third and fourth place and Bonavena also lost that one by disqualification.

The accompanying detailed results are the first published collection to the best of my knowledge. Reports of the Games have been sketchy and the United States Amateur Boxing Federation's records are also. Even the newspaper accounts have been quite limited in their coverage.
